SYNOPSIS

Close childhood friends Antonio and Agostino grew up together in rural Sicily, desperate to escape life in their small village and discover the world. Now in their 30s they both live abroad but haven't seen each other in years. When Antonio one day learns that his family house, since long abandoned, is about to be sold, he embarks on a journey to find his old friend and travel back to Sicily to reclaim it. However, with their relation forever changed, old conflicts and new revelations are threatening to put a dramatic end to their road trip across Europe. A generational story about finding a place called home, wherever you are.

DIRECTOR

Simone Catania co-founded Indyca, an independent production company based in Turin, in 2007, together with friends and professionals. He has directed short films and produced international feature documentaries, among them BECOMING ZLATAN by Fredrik and Magnus Gertten, and more recently HAPPY WINTER by Giovanni Totaro (Official Selection Venice 2017 and IDFA 2017). DRIVE ME HOME is his feature debut as director.
